Commentary:

In a most epic edition of the Tour de France, Jeff wins his fourth Fantasy Tour de France by re-taking the yellow jersey on the final day of the contest. This was the first time ever the PMRSS yellow jersey changed hands four times in the final four stages of the contest. Additionally this contest had the closest ever spread between first place and third place. The research department is still looking into other potential records set during this edition of the contest and will report on them later in the week. Congratulations are also in order for Rob and Jackie who won the white and pink jerseys .
